2ª QUESTÃO

FMAJ - MAJ

Valor: 1,8 (0,2 cada item)

O texto seguinte é um bilhete enviado pelo diretor de uma empresa para seu secretário. Leia-o e assinale V para as afirmativas verdadeiras e F para as falsas no CADERNO DE SOLUÇÕES.

Tim,

Could you circulate a memo to all staff to let them know that we made up our mind at the Director's meeting last week to have the Office done up? We've now hired a firm to do the work and they're probably going to begin on the 14th. They reckon they will probably need three weeks to do the job - life will be difficult, but there's no way we can get round this. While it is going on, the staff will have to work as normal. Tell them we're sorry if this causes them any trouble but we hope that it will put them out as little as possible. Also say we'll be very glad of their co-operation and point out that when the work is finished, we are absolutely sure that the office environment will be much more pleasant. Oh, and mention that between now and then, if there are any colors they'd especially like, they should feel free to tell us.

- 2.1. () Professionals have been contracted to carry out the work.
- 2.2. () The departments will operate only partially during the refurbishment.
- 2.3. () The staff should not hesitate put suggestions forward.
- 2.4. () The directors greatly welcome the staff's co-operation in helping paint the walls.
- 2.5. () The director asks Tim to write a memorandum asking for the staff's opinion about the necessity to redecorate the office.
- 2.6. () The directors apologize for the slightest inconvenience that may be caused to the staff.
- 2.7. () They have estimated that the work will take three weeks with deadline on the 14th.
- 2.8. () There are doubts about the staff's liking the results of the modifications.
- 2.9. () While the work is in progress, disturbance will be unavoidable.

RAVEN AND THE HAIDA PEOPLE

People have always told stories that explain how the world came to be and how people arrived on it. On the Northwest Coast of North America, Native Americans tell about Raven. Raven is a giant bird who can change himself into human form by pushing up his beak and shrugging off his wings, which then become a cloak. The stories also assure the people that Raven takes special care of those who venerate him.

According to tradition, the universe always existed as a wide ocean that covered swampy ground. Birds and sea creatures lived in and around it. Raven made the earth by scooping up pebbles with his beak and dropping them into the ocean. When the earth was big enough, Raven swooped down and walked on the shore, looking out at the vast ocean and feeling lonely.

Then he began to hear tiny voices. They seemed to be coming from a clam shell at his feet. Raven pried open the clam shell with his mighty claws and peered in. Inside the clam shell were people. As the story goes, Raven coaxed them out of the shell and set them on the land, and they were the first people of the Haida tribe of the Northwest Coast.

NATURE IN THE METROPOLIS

World Environment Day 2005 might be just the moment to highlight some pristine location that showcases what we most value about our environment: clean air, pure water, uncluttered landscapes, and rich plant and animal life. But instead, the United Nations Environment Programme turns to a city, San Francisco, as the focus for its celebrations. The reason is simple: Cities are where people concentrate, and what we find there – business, universities, government, and media – shapes public perceptions and political agendas.

This June, mayors from around the world will gather in San Francisco to discuss "green cities" and what sustainability means in the urban environment. The topic is timely because we are witnessing a key moment in the history of our species. For the first time, more people are living in cities than outside them. Now and into the future, we will be Homo urbanus: the city dweller.
